“The afternoon here are very short and tea very soon summons us all together. As soon as that is removed the table is coverd with mathamatical instruments and Books and you hear nothing till nine oclock but of Theorem and problems . . . which Mr. A is teaching to his son; after which we are often called upon to relieve their brains by a game of whist.”

Abigail Adams to Royall Tyler

There are two versions of the 2018 Almanac & Reader. One is this book. The other is the “Ethereal Version,” which will soon appear in The Journal of Law. Eligible Green Bag subscribers should receive one version or the other, but not both. Also, there is a “Players Edition” (intended for some of our extravagant subscribers). It consists of one of the two versions described above, plus some whist-related accessories (playing cards, markers, etc.) in a lovely box.
