THE GOOD GREEN BAG NEIGHBOR

To the Bag:

I received my Spring 2023 issue in the mail recently.

But it did not come from The Green Bag. It came from fellow-subscriber and (I now know) my Manhattan neighbor John Paul DeWitt, a lawyer with McDermott Will & Emery. As he explained in a cover note to me (see attached photo [reproduced on page 268 below]), the plastic wrappings on our issues had melted together in the mail, so two fused issues, his and mine, were delivered to him. He then, wonderfully, went to the trouble of re-sending mine to me.

I'm especially grateful for John's kindness because the issue includes G. Edward White's review and generous comments about Robert H. Jackson's biographical and autobiographical book That Man: An Insider's Portrait of Franklin D. Roosevelt, which I discovered as an unknown manuscript, edited, and published. Best of luck to The Bag with all mailings in these sticky times.

THE PLASTIC WRAP FOR EACH OF OUR COPIES OF THE
GREEN BAG HAD MELTED TOGETHER.
AS A RESULT, USPS DELIVERED
YOUR COPY WITH MINE. RECOGNIZING
HOW MUCH I LOOK FORWARD TO RECEIVING
TGB, I THOUGHT IT BEST TO EXPEDITE (RE)DELIVERY.

BEST,
